

GUATEMALA

ARTISAN STORY

On a small rustic village of a few thousand people on the shores of Lake Atitlan, these uniquely styled bracelets are designed then created by talented women who still wear their traditional dress to signify the Mayan village they are from.

Guatemala is famous for its weaving traditions, which fit into the Mayan culture as the Mayans feel that we are all connected by a huge woven web.

IMPACT

SUSTAINABLE JOBS

We empower artisans to set prices within the framework of the true costs of their labor, time, materials, sustainable growth, and related factors. Ensuring that income is distributed equitably at all times.

CULTURAL RESPECT

These pieces of jewelry are skillfully hand-made in Guatemala by indigenous women to help secure their own independent futures. The jewelry is strung and woven for strength and durability.

COMMUNITY

With the imperative needs of their community- the more jewelry products they sell, generate funds to help them meet their most basic needs and to put them on the path of improving the quality of their community.
